

Commercial air traffic density over the United States on September 10, 2001. The cumulative length of all flights between 7 and 15 km altitude within each 1° latitude-longitude box provide a means to estimate the potential coverage of contrails over the United States.